

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. I thought that public stations are required by law to give equal time to an opposing point of view.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and their personal agendas and less of what citizens need to know for our democracy.

thank you.
